

---

Helping to Keep Your Child Safe

The Canadian Centre for Child Protection is a registered charitable organization dedicated to the personal safety of all children. Our goal is to reduce child victimization by providing programs and services to Canadians. We do this through public awareness activities, our four national programs and our various resources for children of all ages.

---

National Programs:

Cybertip.ca is Canada's tipline for reporting the online sexual exploitation of children. In addition to accepting and forwarding child sexual exploitation reports to law enforcement, Cybertip.ca provides education and awareness material to help keep Canadians safe. Prevention material is developed in conjunction with public reports to the tipline and research on effective education strategies.

For more information, please visit cybertip.ca.

Kids in the Know is an interactive safety education program for schools designed for children and youth from Kindergarten to High School. The purpose of the program is to reduce child/youth victimization by teaching effective personal safety strategies.

For more information, please visit kidsintheknow.ca.

The Commit to Kids program is designed to help child-serving organizations reduce the likelihood that an offender will successfully gain access to and sexually abuse a child in their care. Easy to use and adaptable for organizations of any size, the program provides a comprehensive risk-management approach that goes far beyond criminal record checks and child abuse registry checks.

For more information, please visit commit2kids.ca.

Based on the original Commit to Kids program, Commit to Kids—Sport Edition provides strategies, policies and a step-by-step plan for reducing the risk of child sexual abuse within sport organizations.

For more information, please visit commit2kids.ca/sport.

MissingKids.ca is Canada's one-stop resource and response centre dedicated to the search for missing children. The program offers families support in finding their missing child and provides educational materials to help prevent children from going missing.

For more information, please visit missingkids.ca.

Resources and Activities:

The issue of child sexual abuse is not an easy subject to talk about, especially when you have young children. But it has been found that teaching children safety skills in preschool and early years helps to establish a solid foundation for later learning. In order to help parents, teachers and early childhood educators learn more about the issue and how to better protect children from sexual abuse, the Canadian Centre for Child Protection has created Teatree Tells: A Child Sexual Abuse Prevention Kit. The kit is designed for children four to six years of age. Lessons are age-appropriate, fun and include an animated character (Teatree the Turtle) to help teach children how to be safe. Topics include lessons on identifying safe adults, identifying feelings, naming body parts, establishing personal boundaries, and okay and not okay touching.

For more information, please visit teatreetells.ca.

Children who go places alone are at a greater risk of being harmed. Teaching children to incorporate personal safety strategies, such as the Buddy System, into their daily lives will help reduce their vulnerability towards victimization. The Billy Brings his Buddies program consists of interactive online games, an online storybook as well as activities you can download and complete with your child. The program teaches children the valuable lesson of always having another individual, a buddy, accompany them when they are going places whether it be walking to and from school, going to the store or having fun on the playground.

For more information, please visit billybuddy.ca.

The Zoe and Molly Online website provides information to help parents and educators teach children 8 to 10 years of age about the risks associated with playing games online and sharing their personal information and pictures online. Children can learn through special online games that allow them to create their very own avatar and complete an interactive comic book that helps teach them how to stay safe while adventuring through the online world.

For more information, please visit zoeandmolly.ca.

Recognizing the challenges in discussing the issue of child sexual abuse, the Be Smart, Strong and Safe activity booklet helps teachers educate students in Grades 6 and 7 about this subject in an empowering way. Through a myriad of fun activities, children learn how to identify inappropriate behaviour and how to talk to a safe adult when something makes them feel uncomfortable. Lessons have been developed to accompany the activity booklet so teachers can incorporate this important bilingual program into daily teaching activities.

For more information, please visit smartstrongsafe.ca.

Recognizing that many parents may be feeling overwhelmed trying to keep their children safe in today's online world, the Canadian Centre for Child Protection created The Door that's not Locked — a comprehensive Internet safety website. It features age-specific information on what kids are doing online, the risks associated with these activities and age-appropriate tips and strategies on how to keep children safer.

For more information, please visit thedoorthatsnotlocked.ca.

NeedHelpNow.ca is designed to provide information to youth who have been negatively impacted by the creation and distribution of a sexual picture/video online. The website provides teens with practical steps they can take to begin to regain control over the situation, including how to stop the spread of sexual images online; how to go about seeking the support of a safe adult; how to manage peers, family and school environments; how to cope with the harassment that may be occurring both online and offline; and how to report what is happening.

For more information, please visit needhelpnow.ca.

In a relatively short time, cell phones have evolved from a traditional phone to something that now resembles all the features provided on your personal computer, video and music system. As advancements continue with mobile technology, it is important that parents view these devices in the same way as personal computers in the home. For their own protection, children need to be guided on both the advantages and risks of new technology. The Smartphone Safety website is designed to educate parents/guardians about the potential risks posed to children/adolescents using cell phones, and to highlight proactive strategies that can be used to help keep youth safe.

For more information, please visit mobility.protectchildren.ca.